

Energy Corporation of America

500 Corporate Landing
Charleston, WV 25311
(304) 925-6100

September 3, 2015

To Whom It May Concern:

I am pleased to write this letter in support of Jarrett Construction Services, Inc.

In January 2013, Energy Corporation of America (ECA) contracted with Jarrett Construction to design and build our 62,000 square-foot Appalachian Headquarters.

Project manager Ed Tyson and Superintendent Doug Button coordinated and collaborated with multiple designers and local officials, as well as our associates, to develop and construct the beautiful building we now occupy.

From the outset, it was a team effort between ECA and Jarrett Construction. With regularly-scheduled progress meetings and Jarrett's easy accessibility, we felt as though we had a true partner who would ensure the project was completed on time, under budget and in line with our objectives. In addition, members of the Jarrett Construction team often offered expertise and insight, which ultimately helped our company save money throughout the construction process.

I particularly appreciated their professional level of service and commitment to ensuring a job well done.

In the end, ECA's Appalachian Headquarters was completed a month ahead of schedule and we are very pleased with the result. We frequently receive compliments, from employees and visitors alike, regarding both the beauty and functionality of the building.

Jarrett Construction continuously met or exceeded our expectations and I am glad to recommend John Jarrett and his team.

Sincerely,

Kyle Mork
President